One of the impressive features of the favorable opening of another tourbusiness proposition to keep the port of Honolulu clean. The people are coming and will come in increasing numbers. The only problem is whether the citizens of Honolulu will be so shortsighted in their attitude toward sanitation that by parsimonious pollcies they will endanger the entrance of epidemic diseases.

The continued stay in port of the Pacific fleet has been a great boon to the city from a business standpoint These ships are worth thousands of dollars to any port and the lengthened stry gives Honolulu a foretaste of conditions after the final establishment of the navy yard at Pearl Harbor, where a good number of ships will always be in port and the permament forces of civilians as well as enlisted men will be equal to the esent complement of the warships in the harbor.
